

ISRAELI MISSILE UPGRADES

M47 DRAGON 2 MISSILE

By 1985 the M47 Dragon anti-tank guided missile system had been in service for ten years and its anti-tank penetration was no long comparable to its contemporaries. A program of improvement began in the 1980s and resulted in the Dragon

2 missile, with a new warhead that increased its penetration to a similar level to the European Milan missile.

The new missile could be fired from existing M47 Dragon launch units.

M47 DRAGON 2 MISSILE SPECIAL RULES

M47 DRAGON 2 WEAPONS

An improved missile was developed for the M47 Dragon anti-tank guided missile system in the 1980s. The Dragon 2 missile had increased armour penetration.

The above Units have options to have M47 Dragon 2 missiles instead of M47 Dragon missiles.

If you take any units with M47 Dragon 2 missiles you must take ALL options with M47 Dragon 2 missiles in your Force.

DRAGON MOUNT

The M113 personnel carrier has a mounting for the M47 Dragon missile beside its .50 cal machine-gun.

M47 Dragon or M47 Dragon 2 missile teams may fire while Mounted as a Passenger in a transport with an M47 Dragon Mount, using the Optional M47 Dragon or M47 Dragon 2 missile weapons line as appropriate.

TOW-2 MISSILE

The TOW-2 missile is a further improvement over the iTOW anti-tank guided missile. The TOW-2 has improved anti-tank capabilities with an enlarged warhead to better defeat enemy armour.
